The Alpine Resort History...

Brothers Paul and John Bertschinger first opened The Alpine Lodge in 1922. It was noted to be the first tourist destination in Egg Harbor, and at the time, one of the largest resorts on the peninsula.

In 1924, the Bertschingers purchased more property adjacent to the resort and named it Alpine Point Beach. Intentions were to build a dock for visiting yachts as well as cottages for summer homes. The Door County Advocate boasted that the cottages would include modern conveniences. Electricity and running water were fueled by the resort's power plant.

The Alpine Resort operated under the classic American plan. They offered three meals a day in the lodge's dining rooms. Guests also had the option of rooms in the lodge or a number of small cabins. Guests would travel by steamship to Sturgeon Bay and make their way up the peninsula. Later, Door County's roads improved; some were chauffeured from their homes in Chicago. Daily activities were included for adults and children which included nightly dances that were held in the main lodge.

The Alpine Resort offered 36 holes of golf at its peak. You could ride an electric tram for a quarter from the lower holes to the top of a steep bluff that offered stunning views of Green Bay, and a challenging shot on a par 3. Later some of the course was sold and only 18 holes were available for play.
